

Are You Thin? Pale?

All run down, easily tired, nervous? And do not know what to take? Then go direct to your doctor. Ask his opinion of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It contains no alcohol, no stimulation, and is a blood purifier, a nerve tonic, a strong alternative, an aid to digestion. Ask your doctor about Ayer's non-alcoholic Sarsaparilla as a strong tonic for the weak.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

HONOLULU'S BIG HOUSE FURNISHING STORE.

Complete returns have not yet been received by Mrs. J. M. Dowsett, chairman of the finance committee of the Garden Fete, but she estimated this morning that the amount realized on Saturday will be approximately $3500, or $500 more than the amount necessary to be raised to complete the Children's Hospital endowment fund.

Great credit is due to Mrs. Fred Macfarlane and other ladies of Honolulu who through their large-hearted interest and untiring energy made the Garden Fete in aid of the Children's Hospital on Saturday the colossal success that it was.

Attracted by the deserving cause, but held there by the enticements of superbly managed booths, a large crowd gathered at noon for the luau and with little fluctuation remained until midnight. All the branches of the service were well represented, many people having motored in from Lihoulua to attend.

Fortunately the weather was beautiful, the sun and the moon each striving to outdo the other in brilliancy. There wasn't a raindrop to disturb the peace of the occasion. Hundreds of gay flags waved to and fro in the gentle breeze—making, with the palms and foliage of the garden, a wonderfully picturesque background for the booths.

These were beyond expectation in attractiveness. Not only were the booths artistically arranged and the waiting girls pretty and chic, but the articles on sale—contrary to most fairs—were unusually desirable and within reason in price. It is sad but true that in the case of most church fairs, the spender expects to be "unmercifully fleeced," resigning himself to the operation on account of the worthlessness of the cause. In the case of Saturday's garden fete, however, this was not true. In the fancy work booth the articles were exquisite and well worth the money. The flowers, both natural and artificial, were also beautiful and very reasonable. In the booths where something to eat was served it was deliciously made and its flavor enhanced by the dainty way it was set before you.

Cafe Chantant a Success
Everyone was more than satisfied with the success of the cafe chantant. The supper was excellent both in quantity and quality. The little black frocked serving maids were right there on the job and there were no delays at all in getting your order attended to. The ladies of Maxim's, Froufrou and the rest were stunning in their Parisian gowns, though perhaps a little in the way when the crowd was thickest. The greatest innovation of course was the singing and dancing that took place on a platform at one end of the cafe. Two little pink-frosted children quite brought down the house with the grace of their dancing, one of them possessing a voice and a stage presence that would have been unusual in a girl of twelve years. After the supper was over and during the dancing a delicious egg-nogg was served in the cafe—a spiced drink that was very comforting to the tired fair-goer.

As is always the case, the luau both in the morning and evening, was a huge success. Hawaiian viands, unusually tasty and well cooked, were served in reckless abundance—from pig to poi, it was all there. The attendance was large—the tourist to shudder over the strange dishes and the kamaaina to devour with epicurean enjoyment.

The pretty pink and green candy booth was completely sold out long before the demand for sweet things had ceased. When night came, bringing the adult candy-loving crowd, there was little left for them except salted almonds and chewing gum. These, too, went very quickly, and it was a rare sight to behold some stern deity of the church chewing gum with the vigor of a small boy.

The girls in the ice cream booth were certainly very smart in their white frocks with gay red ruffled aprons, red bangles in their hair and scarlet poppies. Their booth was both well served and well attended. Fortune Tellers Busy.

The fortune tellers covered themselves with glory and the futures they revealed, the pasts they unfolded to say nothing of the characters they disclosed were wonderful in their clairvoyance. Nokomis, the white squaw, was perhaps more skillful and well-versed in the profession than the others, but she was scarcely more popular than some of the clever amateurs who showed considerable knowledge of this occult science.

The children themselves had better tell you about the success of the grab-bag and the mysterious house in the woods, their enthusiasm being so much more spontaneous than that of a staid bystander. But judging from the delighted remarks of the little ones and the way in which the "grabs" disappeared, the success was manifold.

A great deal of interest was taken in the curios brought up from the South Seas by the British gunboat Algerine. They were very odd and held the attention of many fascinated groups. Another feature of interest was the exhibition of the Spreckels house, now belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis. The house which has been enveloped in an air of mystery and gloom for so many years and has been the object of curiosity to so many passers-by, was opened Saturday night so that those interested might explore its old-fashioned depths.

Pale-faced little Peter in his little white bed in the Sunbeam tent was the object of much solicitude and sympathy. Contributions inspired partly by his little wan face and partly by the love, memory, gratitude and sympathy that the Sunbeamites hoped for, were most generous, over a thousand dollars being donated in checks and other ways.

Considering the temporary character of the pavilion, the dancing floor was splendid. It was large enough for a good-sized throng to dance without crowding. There were no restrictions on ragging and some of the steps that were seen on the floor filled the on-lookers with wonder and admiration. The dance was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone and the demand for tickets was eager and persistent until midnight, when the fair closed.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast.

A Little Danderine tonight—now—anytime—will surely save your hair. Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug-store or toilet counter, and after the first application you will say it was the best investment you ever made. Your hair will immediately take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp. —advertisement.
